The Coming White House Wedding

NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN.

WITH the announcement from the White House that Miss Eleanor Wilson and Secretary McAdoo are to be married Thursday, May 7, and that only the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, the members of the Cabinet and their wives, and the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom-elect will be present, society's mind is at rest, for it has been a much debated subject. Dame Rumor is now turning her attention to the hour at which the marriage ceremony will be performed, which has not yet been given out, and who will be in the bridal party.

While it seems that extreme simplicity will mark the approaching marriage, it is not very probable that Miss Wilson will forego having bridal attendants. Those whose names are most frequently quoted as being among her bridesmaids are her elder sisters, Miss Margaret Wilson, and Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, herself a bride of last November, and Miss Nona McAdoo and Miss Sally McAdoo, the young daughters of Secretary McAdoo.

Speculation is also rife as to where the ceremony will be held. The East Room has heretofore been the most frequently chosen, but it may be that Miss Wilson will select the Blue Room. It was in the latter room that President Grover Cleveland and Miss Frances Folsom were married in June, 1886, and it may be that the present White House bride will follow the precedent set by them.

May is so gorgeous a month in Washington that many of Miss Wilson's friends are hoping that she will, herself, set a precedent and be married under the blossoming chestnut trees in the lovely White House grounds. The setting would prove ideal for such a ceremony. It has been frequently prophesied that Secretary McAdoo and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Europe, and while in London that the bride-elect would be presented at the Court of St. James.

Miss Eleanor Wilson went to New York yesterday on a shopping tour. She probably will return in time for the marriage on Wednesday of Miss Maitland Marshall and Paymaster John Knapp, U. S. N., as she is one of Miss Marshall's bridesmaids.

The President is to go to New York also, and will make a speech at a luncheon at the annual meeting of the Associated Press.

Mrs. Wilson and her daughters, Mrs. F. B. Sayre and Miss Margaret Wilson, will remain some days longer at the White Sulphur Springs, where Mrs. Wilson is greatly benefited by the bracing climate.

The Vice President and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall will be hosts at a reception tomorrow night at the Shoreham. Their three other evening entertainments this winter were among the most delightful of the season. This reception, which was postponed on account of the death of Senator Bacon, has been eagerly looked forward to by those fortunate enough to be invited, and the cards of admission eagerly treasured for use tomorrow night.

The Vice President and Mrs. Marshall have been among the most feted of the President's official family, and have won many friends in the National Capital by their cordiality and unaffected manner.

The "Suffrage Ball" at the New Willard on Tuesday evening will be one of the largest dances of the spring season, and even threatens to rival in brilliancy and attendance the famous annual balls given for the Children's Hospital. Mrs. Robert Baker and her coworkers have done everything to make the ball a great success.

Two of the attractive features will be the exhibition dances and the competitive dancing for which prizes will be given. A seated supper will be served at midnight.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is chairman of the ball committee, and Mr. Ormsby McCammon chairman of the floor committee. The dance committee is under the direction of Mr. Myron M. Parker, jr. Competitive dancing will be a feature of the evening, and the judges will be Mr. T. J. D. Fuller, Capt. Theodore Baldwin, jr., Mr. Ormsby McCammon, and Mr. Myron Parker, jr.

Mrs. William Kent, of California; Mrs. Nevil Monroe Hopkins, and Mrs. Robert Baker, form the committee on arrangements. The committee of young women includes Miss Mary Morgan, chairman; Miss Helen Buchanan, Miss Dasha Allen, Miss Edith Goode, Miss Elizabeth Kent, Miss Marie Peary, Miss Emily Beatty, Miss Marcia Murdock, and Miss Callie Hoke Smith.

Other dances of the week will be the Georgetown senior prom at the New Willard tomorrow night, which will be attended by many visiting collegians and this and last year's debutantes; Representative and Mrs. Augustus P. Gardner will give a dance tomorrow night for their daughter, Miss Constance Gardner, at the Country Club; Mrs. John W. Falls' dance on Wednesday evening, and Senator and Mrs. Hoke Smith's masquerade dance for their debutante daughter, Miss Callie Hoke Smith.

Wedding bells will ring out with the same frequency this week as distinguished the past seven days. Among the notable weddings will be the marriage on Tuesday morning of Miss Edmondia Mason Adams, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. James Dexter Adams, to Dr. Richard Kearney; the following day Miss Maitland Marshall, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William Marshall, and Passed Assistant Paymaster Knapp, U. S. N., will be married, and on Saturday Miss Frances Brooks, granddaughter of Brig. Gen. John M. Wilson, U. S. A., retired, will marry Mr. Edward B. Fletcher, of Philadelphia. Naval and military weddings have a glamour all their own, and with war clouds on the horizon add many a heartache as well as increased interest to the event.

Fashionable society divided its attention yesterday afternoon between the Porter-Flood wedding and the amateur baseball game between the Yale-Harvard alumni residing in Washington. The latter was played at the Chevy Chase Club, and groups of enthusiastic spectators cheered the cluermen throughout the game.

The President occupied a box at the Belasco Theater last night. He was accompanied by Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, his nephew, Mr. Fitz Woodrow, Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Cary Grayson, U. S. N.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, who spent the first of the week in New York, have gone on a trip on the New York River, as guests of the Sons of the American Revolution, and will visit a number of historic places.

The British Ambassador and Lady Spring-Rice entertained at a luncheon yesterday in compliment to Sir William Willocks, of England, the engineer of the Asutan Dam.

The Solicitor General and Mrs. John William Davis were hosts at a dinner last night at their residence in the Avenue of the Presidents in honor of the Vice President and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall.

The guests invited to meet them were Justice and Mrs. Joseph Lamar, Representative and Mrs. Hunter Moss, of Virginia; Lieut. Commander and Mrs. Hepburn, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee, and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Glass.

Not since the marriage of Representative and Mrs. Longworth, with the East Room of the White House as its setting, has so large a wedding company assembled in Washington as that which yesterday witnessed the marriage of Miss Anna Porter to Representative Henry D. Flood, of Virginia.

The ceremony, which took place at the All Souls Church at 3 o'clock, was followed by a reception at the Pan-American Building, which was offered for this unusual occasion as a compliment to the bridegroom in his position as chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the House of Representatives.

Long before the hour of the ceremony, which was attended by the President and Vice President of the United States and entire Diplomatic Corps, the ushers were kept busy seating the early arrivals, while the late arrivals were unable to gain more than a glimpse of the attractive bride as she passed through the vestibule of the church to the altar.

The ushers who led the long procession were Representative McKeller, of Tennessee; Representative Dupre, of Louisiana; Mr. John Barrett, of Missouri; Mr. John B. Cullum, of New York; Mr. John C. Quinn, of New York; Col. Button, U. S. A., and the Messrs. Porter and Edward G. Porter, all of Washington.

The bridesmaids were the Baroness Marie von Paumgarten, daughter of the former counselor of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy; Miss Genevieve Clarke, daughter of the Speaker of the House; Miss Edith Gracie, Miss Cornelia Claggett, Miss Hanna Taylor, all of Washington; Miss Douglas Fuller, of Winchester, Va.; and Miss Lucy Martin, daughter of the Senator from Virginia.

Mrs. Lorimer Graham and Miss Hildegarde Porter, sisters of the bride, as matron and maid of honor, respectively, walked between the bridesmaids and the bride. The latter, escorted by her brother, Mr. Alvin O. Porter, looked really handsome in a gown of white satin with long square train and a veil of tulle edged with duchess point lace. The gown, while conforming to all the traditions of bridal attire, was extremely up to date, with slight fullness in the front of the skirt. The bodice was a draped surplice model embroidered in pearls, both back and front. This was worn over an underbodice of net with deep edge of duchess point lace outlining the V to the waist line. The half-length sleeves were of satin finished by undersleeves of lace and pearl embroidery.

The bride's bouquet was filled with the valley orchids. The bridesmaids' gowns were of pink tulle with double minaret tulle and very smart bodices with V-necks and half-length sleeves. Mrs. Graham and Miss Hildegarde Porter wore gowns of white net with pink skirts and the edge of their bodices run with pink ribbon, with wide gradings of pink ribbon to emphasize the color scheme. All wore shepherdess hats of leghorn, but with a difference in size between the smaller hats topping the net gowns, while the tulle-clad maidens wore rather large hats with pink moire crowns. All were trimmed in tiny clusters of French roses and velvet ribbons. The bride's attendants carried bridesmaid roses.

The bridegroom, attended by his nephew, Mr. Harry Flood Byrd, entered the flower-lined canopy from the vestry to join the bride at the head of the aisle. Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, the minister in charge, performed the ceremony according to the custom of the Unitarian faith. The floral decorations not only of the chancel and platform, but all through the body of the church, were unusually beautiful. Rambler roses and Easter lilies formed the walls, also formed an arch in the middle of the chancel, where bride and bridegroom stood for the ceremony. Easter lilies and fern extended from either side of this structure as a background for the grouping of the large bridal party, while all the way down the aisle the pews were marked by standards of lilies and roses at short intervals. Around the gallery and the side walls were festoons of roses marked with baskets of hydrangeas, and the choir rail was banked with palms.

Following the ceremony the entire company found its way to the Pan-American Building, where the bride and bridegroom took up their position in the Hall of the Americas to welcome and receive their hundreds of guests and well-wishers.

In the library on the ground floor buffet refreshments were served from a long table decorated profusely in American Beauty roses, the Meyer Davis orchestra played throughout the reception, which came to a close with informal dancing. At the close of the reception Mr. and Mrs. Flood drove to the Highlands where the late changed her wedding gown for a blue cloth tailored suit, before starting on a short honeymoon visit to an unnamed retreat near Washington. Owing to the impossibility of the bridegroom leaving himself from Washington at this time, they have taken an apartment at the Shoreham as a temporary home for the spring season, and will not establish their regular residence in Washington until next autumn.

In addition to the entire body of Congress, which adjourned at 4 o'clock to attend the wedding, the notable guests at the reception included the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, the German Ambassador, the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Riano, the Minister from Colombia and Mme. Calderon, Miss Calderon, the Peruvian Minister and Mrs. Pizarro, the former Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. David Jayne Hill, Mrs. Robert McCormick, the Misses Patten, Mrs. William Barrett, Mrs. Chandler Anderson, Mrs. Boardman, Mrs. Charles Faulkner, Mr. and Mrs. Selwin Tait, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, Miss Julia Wilson, Mrs. Isaac T. Mann, Mr. Henry R. Boustead, Mrs. Archibald Gracie, Mr. and Mrs. Hannis Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williams, of Chicago; Lieut. and Mrs. Alston Simpson, Mrs. Charles Richardson, Mrs. Charles Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Wynne, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kauffmann, Miss Davidge, Miss Flora Wilson, Miss Meta Morris Evans, Mrs. Charles McChord, and Miss McChord.

They received many superb presents. The Secretary of State sent a set of books, "The Speeches and Public Papers of the Presidents of the United States," the House of Representatives a gift, was a handsome silver tea and coffee service, the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House, of which Representative Flood is chairman, sent one large silver dish and two smaller, and the Senate, of which Representative Flood represents the Tenth district, which Representative Flood represents in Congress, sent a lovely large silver salver.
